Course Description	This 5 day intensive bootcamp introduces middle school students to the fundamentals of Model United Nations (MUN) in an engaging, structured, and interactive environment. Throughout the program, students will learn how international diplomacy works while developing essential skills in public speaking, research, collaboration, and negotiation. Each day combines guided instruction with hands-on activities, allowing students to actively participate in simulations and practice real MUN skills. Participants will learn how to research their assigned country, write position papers, deliver opening speeches, and engage in moderated and unmoderated caucuses. Emphasis is placed on confidence-building, teamwork, and learning how to think critically about global issues. By the end of the bootcamp, students will have a strong understanding of how MUN conferences operate and will participate in a final committee simulation, where they apply everything they've learned in a realistic and supportive setting.
